*Trusted medical information
from family physicians*

familydoctor.org

presents family physician-reviewed, up-to-date content that speaks in terms all patients understand.

Patients turn to our site for trustworthy information on their health, and family physicians utilize articles from familydoctor.org because the content aligns with the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP).

With 133,500 members, the AAFP is the only medical society solely devoted to primary care.

- Family medicine is the only specialty that provides comprehensive care to patients in every stage of life.
- Family physicians are visited 48 percent more than the next-most-visited medical specialty.

OUR PROMISE

Familydoctor.org delivers on a promise to help patients navigate their health journey—from exam room to living room—with physician-validated educational handouts and tools. Family physicians not only refer their patients to our user-friendly site, but they also find value in utilizing site content that aligns with clinical recommendations from the American Academy of Family Physicians. There’s a reason familydoctor.org consistently ranks as a top, patient-oriented website—it’s accurate, reliable, and both physician- and patient-approved.

The Power of Referrals

Family physicians not only write and review all articles, but because it aligns with the AAFP clinical guidelines, they refer their patients to the site.

Our physician members often use articles to create patient handouts because they enable the editable print function, which allows them to customize each piece. By doing this, physicians demonstrate the value of familydoctor.org to the patients, who, based on this recommendation, head to the site to explore more about conditions, diseases, or other health-related topics.

Due to the heavy traffic and preferred status among health care teams, familydoctor.org enjoys one of the best marketing tools you can't buy—word-of-mouth referral. Sponsors leverage this status to help drive results.
